Joel,

As I said in our phone conversation, [redacted] has asked NEA/I to look into Egyptian press reports that Mohamed Abd ElMonaem El Ezmeny, an Egyptian national, died while detained in Iraq. According to the reports, a family member visited him three weeks before his death and found him in good health. The family said they received a death certificate along with the body that listed the cause of death as "pressure on the brain." The family hired a doctor to perform an autopsy - he found says the cause of death is a broken neck as a result of a sudden strike on the back of the head.

[redacted] says this story is gaining publicity in Egypt and could become a public opinion issue for the U.S. [redacted] said the Egyptian parliament is considering holding a hearing on the case. Further, he says the deceased's name is not listed on the CPA website listing all detainees (the site is in Arabic, so I cannot confirm).

I have passed this information on to the detainee policy group at OSD asking for further information, but would appreciate your contacting the American Embassy in Cairo for a better readout on this case.

It is worth noting that while [redacted] was adamant that we do something he did not recommend any course of action.
