Date & Time	Fact Text	Source(s)
To Be Determined	[redacted] has never seen the draft AG Letter document (relating to an FBI/DOJ proposal [redacted])	[redacted]
		Interview 2 at 1:45
To Be Determined	[redacted] recalls that [redacted] from the Behavioral Analysis Unit participated in discussions at U.S. Naval Base Guantanamo Bay, Cuba about a strategy for interviewing [redacted] There was a disagreement between Behavioral Analysis Unit personnel and Department of Defense interrogators about the best approach to interviewing detainees, but [redacted] does not recall exactly when this took place.	[redacted]
		Interview 2 at 2:00-8:00
To Be Determined	In the Spring or Summer of 2002 [redacted] and other Behavioral Analysis Unit personnel [redacted] traveled to U.S. Naval Base Guantanamo Bay, Cuba and conducted an initial assessment of operations there. They prepared a report in Letterhead Memorandum form. One of their observations was that there was no multi-tiered system at U.S. Naval Base Guantanamo Bay, Cuba for rewarding detainees who cooperated. This observation appears in the draft AG Letter document.	[redacted]
		Interview 2 8:00-12:00
To Be Determined	[redacted] does not recall Behavioral Analysis Unit taking the position that the environment at U.S. Naval Base Guantanamo Bay, Cuba was creating "complacency" in the detainees, as stated in the draft AG Letter document.	[redacted]
		Interview 2 12:00-17:20
To Be Determined	[redacted] believes that [redacted] as mentioned in the draft AG Letter document refers to techniques different from what the Behavioral Analysis Unit would support. He is not sure the Behavioral Analysis Unit knew specifically what techniques were part of this model or which agency was using them. At some point after [redacted] trip to U.S.	[redacted]
