Tom,

You'll be getting an EC or some sort of formal request for info in the next day or two, but just as a heads up: NCIS is investigating allegations that [REDACTED] made about physical abuse after he was captured. In the preliminary inquiry that the Navy has done to date, they say that he was likely in the custody of the Army or "possibly CTC and/or FBI personnel" at the times he says he was abused. (Interestingly, according to the Navy, [REDACTED] reports no abuse while on board USS Bataan or USS Peleliu or while at GTMO.)

That would have been my thought too. He describes guys in ninja outfits as having been the ones who mistreated him. I'll email the navy write up if you're interested.

Val, first review indicates we did not have access to [redacted] until he was at GTMO. My folks indicate that CTC may have had him for some time. Again this is just a quick review, let you know if I come up with more. Tom

It is NCIS. They have sent a description of what [REDACTED] has said. He alleges abuse at times, before he got to GTMO, not at GTMO. Basically, in Afghanistan and Pakistan (I think) from Americans dressed in black (and maybe some Army guys).

Valerie

PS How did things go today?. Are you guys going to get any rain out of Francis?

Valerie - Any idea who is sending us this request for information? Is it NCIS? Is JTF-GTMO already aware of this? I'm at a loss on this one and I'd like to get a head start if I can, but I'd like to have more info, if there is any, before I start banging around down here. [REDACTED] while in GTMO last week for the prelim, went on the news and stated that [REDACTED] wasn't abused at GTMO.
